Round of Gayeties to Begin With Easter Monday Night

Final Subscription Dances of the Season Arranged-Exodus to Europe Offset by Many Men and Women of Society Returning From Abroad.

7 ITH this week the season of Lent will come to an end, and while that period that is supposed to be devoted to deeds of self denial has been moderately gay, there has been no entertainment of as marked the earlier part of the long fashionable season. In a season to recall that has exceeded even those of pre assed the hundred mark and for whom it was necessary to long succession of receptions, dinners, theater parties and back as the early days of last November.

staying power of these aspirants to the bountiful favors of society beir diversion. It was a rather difficult matter to settle down to a humdrum life that the Lenten season prescribes, and while there have gatherings of the younger element they have been for philanthropic or charitable purposes and there have been raised substantial amounts to carry on one institution or another whose needs always

With Easter week there will begin another round of entertainments to raise funds for charity and combined with these calls upon one's purse there will be plenty otherwise to make the week notable with the many weddings that are to be celebrated in town. The season for country nup tials is weeks ahead and there seem to be but few such in prospect, although midsummer may witness some important marriages. Climatic conditions here are not conducive to a supplementary season of dances, but there will be a few subscription parties, in each case the last of a series.

Easter Monday night will see the final Coffee Dance in the ballroom o the Cosmopolitan Club and the subscribers, including young married people, will come on from dinners to the club for their coffee. Mrs. Theron R. Strong has directed these dances during the winter. The final meeting of the Midnight Club, with supper and dancing, will be held on the night of April 19 in the ballroom of the Ambassador, and as there is a surplus of funds left over from the previous dances there will be some money, which will be devoted to a charity. Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mrs. Edward N. Breitung and Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander have comprised the women's committee of these dances, which have been decidedly successful.

Another gathering to mark Easter week will be the last of the Mid-Winter Dances, which were organized three years ago and which have since held a decidedly enviable place. These dances have not taken into consideration the debutantes, for whom so many provisions have been made, but their subscribers have included young married people and young women who were numbered among the debutantes several years ago. The last dance of the series for this season is to be held in the main ballroom of the Ritz-Cariton, and in advance of it there will be numerous dinners. The committee includes Mmes. Jonathan Bulkley, Rudolph H. Kissel, George C. Fraser, Dave Hennen Morris, Wilfred I. Worcester, Philip G. Bartlett, Richard M. Hurd, Pierre Jay, John Sherman Hoyt and Frederic W. Lincoln.

The European exodus continues, and the gatherings at the great ocean steamships on the days of their sailing for foreign shores are like those of other times. Floral tributes are piled up in the cabins and there is as of yore a crowd to waft bon voyage to relatives and friends. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid salled last week, and it is her plan to go to the South of France to join her son-in-law and daughter. Sir John and Lady Ward, who were here the early part of the winter. Mrs. Reid passed most of her winters abroad when her husband, the late Whitelaw Reid, was the American Minister to France and later in London, when he was the Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Field Bishop and their daughter, Miss Beatrice Bend Bishop, who sailed last week on board the Paris, will motor on the Contint, and they also will go to Brussels to pass some time with the recently ap-inted American Ambassador to Belgium and Mrs. Henry Prather Fletcher, the latter being Mrs. Bishop's sister. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Barrows have planned an interesting summer abroad. They will sail on board the Parls on April 26, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Sarah F. Barrows, and after passing not open Wonderlea, their summer place in Seabright, N. J. Mrs. Richard Stevens, who went to the White Sulphur Springs last week, has arranged to sail on board the Homeric May 6, and in England will be joined by her daughter. Miss Dorothy Stevens, who has been abroad nearly a year. Mrs. Burke Roche has decided to sail on April 26 for the summer.

Countess Scherr-Thoss, who has been for the greater part of the winter with her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, sailed last week on board the Rotterdam. Before joining her husband in Germany she will make visits in England, France and Belgium. Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Fahnestock will not open Shadow Brook Farm, their country place in Shrewsbury N. J., but instead will sail with their children on board the Aquitania May 23 to remain until autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brekaw have leased for the summer Frost Mill Lodge, in Little Neck, L. I., and with their daughters. Misses Barbara and Mimi Brokaw, will sail early in June to remain several months. Mrs. Mintirn Pinchot and her daughter, Miss Rosamond Pinchot, are to sail this week, and will remain for the summer. Miss Pinchot will be among the debutantes of next season.

, and Mrs. David Wagstaff have decided to pass the summer in Europe, and with their sons will sail June 15 for Naples, to remain until autumn. those recently starting for Paris were Prince and Princess Andre Poniatowski, Jr., who had been in New York for part of the winter. was Miss Frances Lawrance, daughter of the late Francis C. Lawrance. Her mother, who was Miss Lanier, died several years ago, her father marrying afterward Miss Susan Willing of Philadelphia, sister of Lady blesdale. Mrs. Lawrance now lives in Paris.

All travelers are not starting from these shores, as there are many now on the high seas bound for this port. Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend, who went abroad in February, are on the Homeric, after having passed several weeks in Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris. They will be at 237 Madison avenue until the end of May, when they will go to Forest Edge Farm, their country place in Locust Valley. Miss Emily Sloane Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hammond, who has been abroad several weeks, also is a e Homeric. While abroad she has been part of the time with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, who have been abroad two years, plan to return this spring, and they expect to be in Newport for the summer. Mrs. Belmont's sister, Mrs. Peter Lynch, who has been living in Paris for twenty years, now is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Hoguet.

Dinners, dancing and calesthenics will be features of an entertainment to Pierre's on the night of April 17, when the beneficiary will be the Cardiac Clinic of the New York University. Tables for dinner and supper placed about the sides of the restaurant, and just before midnight of the debutantes of the winter will demonstrate "how to keep fit" by the rules of Mr. Walter Camp, and they will include Misses Catharine Dews, Felicia Fisk, Carlotta Havemeyer, Marjorie Hughes and Mary Sheffield. There will be music by Bert Ambrose and his orchestra, from the Embassy Club of London, which will play during dinner and for dancing. Mrs. Juan Mayer will
